A small boiler supplies steam to the blower. The gas escapes from the producer at a high temperature, and goes to an economizer, where it gives up much of its heat either (1) to fresh air which is about to be forced through tubes in the producer, or (2) to water the vapor from which mixes with the air, or (3) to both. The gas then passes to the scrubber, where it meets a spray of cold water, which further cools it and takes from it dust and solid impurities, after which it goes to the purifier for the extraction by chemical process of certain undesirable components and for the completion of the removal of solids, or to a dry scrubber, and thence to the gas-holder. If anthracite coal or coke is used, very little chemical purification is necessary;...
