Nor, while the bright-eyed celandine, With bashful mien, Lifts to the bridegroom Sun s embrace Her virgin face, Thy altar lack for votive bays. I THE SWEET O THE YEAR. 103 THE SWEET O THE YEAR. TO pass the spring alone Were folly; Even as to groan For melancholy, When all the world is young, Were to be most untrue. Ah! when the skies are blue, And broidered hawthorns blow. And dower The grass below With many a shower From boughs with snow-flowers hung. Who would not happy be, Roaming in Arcady? LOVE AND SPRING. THE southward willow palm Has caught the sunlight fair, And scatters golden balm Down the stream of the April air. Over the emerald wheat The lark laughs up...
