Not illustrated. 1846 Excerpt: .darkened with divers escutcheons of painted glass; one shining pane in particular bears date 1286, which alone preserves the memory of a knight, whose iron armour is long since perished with the rust, and whose alabaster nose is mouldered from his monument. . In former days there have dined in this very hall gartered knights and courtly dames, attended by ushers, sewers, and seneschals, and yet it was but last night an owl flew hither, and mistook it for a barn. (He then describes the ups and downs of the hall and the contents of the great parlour, viz. the broken-bellied virginal, the crippled velvet chairs, the mildewed portraits, and the dried poppies and mustard seed. Then we read of the pigeon-house, and the entry by the side of it, leading you to the two chambers; the buttery, the chaplain s study, the brewhouse, the little green and gilt parlour, the great stairs, the dairy, the servants hall, and the old dame s devotional closet, where she could mumble her lesson, and watch the frolicksome maids at one and the same time.) There are upon the ground floor, writes the author, in all, twenty-six apartments, among which I must not forget a chamber which has in it a large quantity of timber, that seems to have been either a bedstead or a cyder press. The kitchen is built in the form of a rotunda, being one vast vault to the top of the house; where one...
